

MSA CFO Stacy McMahan Resigns to Accept New Opportunity; Kerry Bove Appointed Interim CFO

Aug 27, 2015

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 27, 2015 /PRNewswire/ -- MSA Safety Incorporated (NYSE: MSA) today announced that its Chief Financial Officer, Stacy McMahan, has resigned effective September 25, 2015, to accept the position of CFO at a public medical device and life sciences company. Ms. McMahan's departure is not due to MSA's financial reporting nor is it the result of any disagreement with the company on any matter related to MSA's operations, policies or practices.

William M. Lambert, MSA Chairman, President and CEO, said the company has initiated an external search for a fulltime successor as CFO. In addition, MSA Senior Vice President Kerry Bove has been appointed interim CFO. Unrelated to Ms. McMahan's departure, MSA's Board of Directors elected Ken Krause, Executive Director of Global Finance, to the position of Treasurer, and Randy Killeen, Controller, to the position of Chief Accounting Officer. "As new officers of the company, both Ken and Randy will work closely with Kerry during this interim period to ensure the needs of MSA and our shareholders are met," Mr. Lambert said.

Ms. McMahan joined MSA in 2012 as Senior Vice President of Finance, and in 2013 she was elected Chief Financial Officer and Treasurer. Over the past three years, Ms. McMahan oversaw MSA's Internal Audit, Treasury and Decision Support functions, bringing leadership and experience to an already strong team of finance professionals.

"We are grateful for Stacy's service and contributions to MSA during her relatively brief time with us, and we wish her the very best in her new opportunity," Mr. Lambert said. "Stacy guided the realignment of our global financial resources, and today our team is better aligned with our corporate strategy and better equipped to help us make the decisions that are necessary for creating long-term value for all MSA stakeholders," he concluded.
